

Homosexuality.

Homosexuality is aligned with woman's liberation as an evolutionary step. The point is not to form homosexual equivalents of heterosexual motifs. Heterosexuality (and marriage as a yin-yang relationship) belongs to the world of the past. The goal is for the individual within himself to realize both his masculine and feminine potential. We are born with an instinctive knowledge of half of the unity. Traditionally, man has sought a mate, his other half, and together formed a whole. But this is an unsatisfactory solution. It is not so important that men have sex together as it is for man to find his own unity within himself.

That marriage is dying, that homosexuality is rising seems an evolutionary indication that the time is near and that we are being prepared to make this step. Love is of the essence, but individual unity must be preserved.
